I saw this series mentioned in the magazine Entertainment Weekly and looked for it online. I was pleasantly surprised to see the episodes posted on YouTube. I just finished watching this particular episode and have to say for a “fan effort I thought it was far superior to any of the spin offs. I think Gene Roddenberry would be very pleased with what’s up there on that screen. What kept going through my mind is that I was watching something that should have occurred thirty years ago. I always felt that the spin offs had been taken over by people who really were not fans of the original and that Gene Roddenberry’s original vision had been butchered horribly. “Star Trek: New Voyages is what should have happened all those years ago!
